RELEASED DECEMBER 12, 2012

"LIGHTS" is the latest release by Canadian musician Brock Tyler. Built around simple recordings of Tyler's voice and guitar captured together by a single microphone, the EP began with what was originally intended to be a quickly recorded demo of new song in the summer of 2012. The result (opening track City Lights) was deemed good enough to build on and over the following weeks five more songs were similarly recorded. Tyler then proceeded to fill out the arrangements with an assortment of guitars, synthesizers, a Helpinstill portable piano and half a drum kit, along with guest musicians who contributed backing vocals and pedal steel.

This is Brock Tyler's third official release, preceded by the EP "You Can't Keep The Sun Down" (2011) and LP "Unclosing" (2007). Tyler's songs have appeared in shows on network television (MTV and HBO Canada) as well as independent film. He is based in Edmonton, Alberta, Canada and releases his music through Kinsella Recordings.
